Eight Tips for the Perfect Linkbait Brainstorm

- 1. Advanced notice for your team
- 2. Small active teams are better than large, inactive teams
- 3. Use a separate space
- 4. Time limitations encourage urgency and ideas
- 5. Never criticize. Encourage other people's ideas.
- 6. Quantity of ideas, Not Quality
- 7. Don't use tools
- 8. Sift through ideas afterwards

Write Down Your Objectives

What's the objective?
Building domain strength and authority?
Boosting and maintaining rankings of key pages?
What pages are you trying to rank?
How do these ranking pages tie back to business and profit objectives?

Research Your Client, Exhaustively

Who is the client?
What do they do?
In what way are they unique?
In what way are they thought leaders?
What does the client want to be known for?

Outline Your Project Assets

Who will be working on this project?
How much time do you have?
What's your budget?
What will be your success metrics?
Who needs to sign this off?
What are the key delivery dates for this project?
Any more notes:

Brainstorm Topics

What do they already know?
What do they think they already know?
What's Hot or Newsworthy in the Industry at the moment? Search via Topsy.com
What do they really care about? What are they passionate about? What do they spend their spare time doing? Job? Salary?
What do they find to be a real pain? What's the bane of their lives? What keeps them up at night?
Are there any related fields you could tap? Go niche? Go broad?
Do they have any sacred cows? What could they not live without? What shouldn't you tread on?
How Can You Help? Do you know anything insightful about that industry?
Where does your audience hang out?

How large is your audience?
What are they sharing?

Brainstorm Linkerati Personas

Who specifically are you trying to persuade – who's got access to the code? A webmaster? A community manager? A mummy blogger?
What are they specifically interested in – their passions, pains and problems?
Have you got their personal email? Any possible email addresses?
Why are they online? To make a profit? For a hobby? Is it their job?
How could you add value in your pitch to them, making their life easier and make them look good?
How often do they spend on their website? How quickly, if at all, might you get a response?
How much effort might it be to link to you? Based on what they're already doing, what is their preferred method of linking to or sharing other sites? Embedding? Tweeting? Blogging? Directories or resource lists?
Do they have any social media profiles? Who follow's them? What are they sharing?

What would make them stop what they're doing and respond to you?
What are their sacred cows? Is there anything you can't threaten or talk about?
What can't they stop talking about? What can't they get enough of?
Are there any internet memes you could tap into to encourage sharing
Are they SEO savvy? Do they understand the value of a link from them?
Do they have any related interests you could tap?
What might make a really effective incentive for them in particular?
Any More Notes:

Find Your USP

If you can find something compelling and unique about your linkbait, not only will you dramatically increase the likelihood of your linkbait being a success, but you'll also fend off copycats.

Are there any people you can talk to, and relationships you can leverage exclusively? Do you have one-to-one relationships with influencers your competitors don't have?
Do you have, or could you create any proprietary tools that only you have access to, and control?
Perhaps you've got exclusive access to certain data, or have knowledge of a certain process?
Could you get exclusive access to any news story? Could you be the first to add some interesting data and expand on the story in a significant way?
How can you add personality and characters to your linkbait?

Develop Your Headlines

PRO Tip: Try to work in a mix of self-interest, news, curiosity and promise of quick relief. Brainstorm at least three headlines for each concept you've got

CONCEPT #1
Headline Idea #1
Headline Idea #2
Headline Idea #3

CONCEPT #2
Headline Idea #1
Headline Idea #2
Headline Idea #3

CONCEPT #3
Headline Idea #1
Headline Idea #2
Headline Idea #3

CHECKLIST for EACH HEADLINE:

- ✓ Is it keyword rich? What keywords is it targeting?
- ✓ Is it less than 70 characters, including spaces?
- ✓ Does it include any "Buzzwords"? Are the buzzwords effective, or just a cliché?
- ✓ Could you make the headline simpler? Could you use less language?
- ✓ Is it explicitly clear what the headline is promising? Have you asked someone else what they'd expect from reading your headline?
- ✓ Does it include an element of self-interest hook? Does it provoke fear or greed?
- ✓ Does it also share news, a quick-relief or arouse curiosity? Could it include one?

Review Your Brainstorm

Does It Meet the client's criteria?
How does this get back to making money?
Why would your audience care about this? When would they care?
How else, and how easily could I find this kind of stuff out?
Do you have, or know of, any similar successful linkbait pieces like your ideas
Why would they trust you rather than someone else?
What constraints will you face when creating this? Do you have enough time and money?
How are you going to find the people to help you make and market this?

Verify Your Idea with Test Outreach

PRO Tip: Get at least five yes's before you start your actual linkbait. Then you're home and dry.
